

CALL FOR PAPERS - 2011 IJEP ISSUES

REFORMS AND RESISTANCE IN EDUCATION

International Journal of Educational Policies is a refereed, open access, international, biannual online-only journal that is policy-oriented and committed to promoting debate about education policies and politics among academics, activists, educators. This Call for Papers announce for future issues of International Journal of Educational Policies (IJEP). The journal can be visited at <http://ijep.icpres.org> and can be registered at <http://ojs.ijep.info> as author, refereeing contributor or reader.

The manuscript submission to the Journal is year round. The focused theme and especially welcomed issues of the journal were given following but not limited with them. Manuscripts which can be related with directly or indirectly educational policies are welcome. Both policy analysis theoretically and research papers with qualitative or quantitative data can be submitted for evaluation. Racist, sexist, nationalist and all kind discriminative language in the manuscripts is not tolerated. This journal seeks to challenge about thinking on the current educational policies and incentives behind of them. We look for the most original, provocative submissions possible. Neoliberal Education Reforms and Resistance Practices around the World will be the main interest for mentioned issues of IJEP. We welcome the country cases and also detailed case analysis for education reforms and the resistances against them.

General scope of the journal are education policies which includes but not limited to policy analysis for country level, comparative educational practices, research methodologies related with analysis of education policies; 'race' and education, gender policies, special education policies, identities and inequalities in education, equity in policies and practices with cases, lifelong learning policies, post compulsory education and training, higher education policies, e- learning and distance education policies, politics of technology, transition policies, tracking in education, financing policies in education, information policies, ethics as a political issue, art policy in education, commercialization and privatization in education, neo-liberalism and destruction of public education.

All submissions will be peer reviewed. Those submissions accepted for publication will be published in International Journal of Educational Policies (IJEP), Vol. 5 with two issues and following issues depending on the revising process.

Publication Schedule

- * Manuscripts Due for this Call: September 30, 2011
- * Publication of Accepted Manuscripts: IJEP /Volume 5, Number 1-2
- * Notification of Evaluation: Two months after submission
- * Finalization and Publication of Accepted Papers: December 2011- January 2012

Submission of Proposals

Author/s may submit a constructed abstract proposal, approximately 300-400 words to ijep.editor@icpres.org. Structured abstracts may include aims/hypotheses, major method and analysis and pre-findings or conclusions of the manuscripts. Those who have had their abstracts accepted will be formally invited to submit a full length paper of approximately 5000 to 6000 words. Manuscripts longer than around these counts will be consider by editorial board according to their subject and method requirements. For IJEP submission guidelines, visit: <http://ijep.icpres.org/submission.htm>

Detailed evaluations of peer reviews will be shared with the authors. While influenced by the outcome of the blind peer reviews, Publication Board of the IJEP will decide on final publication.

For More Information Visit: <http://ijep.icpres.org>

Editor: Assoc.Prof. Hasan H. Aksoy

E-mail: aksoy@education.ankara.edu.tr ijep.editor@icpres.org

Address: Ankara University
Faculty of Educational Sciences
Cebeci- 06590-Ankara/Turkey